4-19-2013

Restoring the Richard's Cabin - Nevada City Living History Museum

Paul Hart
Highlands College

Follow this and additional works at: http://digitalcommons.mtech.edu/stdt_rsch_day_2013

Part of the Construction Engineering Commons, and the Historic Preservation and Conservation Commons

Recommended Citation
http://digitalcommons.mtech.edu/stdt_rsch_day_2013/4

This Poster is brought to you for free and open access by the Highlands College at Digital Commons @ Montana Tech. It has been accepted for inclusion in Posters by an authorized administrator of Digital Commons @ Montana Tech. For more information, please contact sjuskiewicz@mtech.edu.
Highlands College Historic Preservation student, Paul Hart, researched and accurately reconstructed parts of the Richards Cabin at the Nevada City Living History Museum in partnership with the Montana Heritage Commission.

“Montana Tech has a strong belief in providing our students as much ‘hands-on’ experience as possible,” said Bill Ryan, Highlands College Chair of the Trades & Technical Department. “Paul’s internship experience was so successful that the Montana Heritage Commission is asking for more student interns in the future to assist them in their valuable preservation work. Of course, we will be happy to oblige. We have more work planned for the museum.”

The Richards Cabin has an infamous place in the colorful history of Montana vigilante justice. The story is that a vigilante posse captured George Ives for the murder of Nicholas Tbalt. The roof of the Richards Cabin served as a sort of balcony seating for some of the locals watching the trial. Ives was hanged almost immediately after the trial.